RAIL STRIKE HITS YPSILANTI HARD

DEALERS NOT WORRIED—
BELIEVE COAL SITUATION
WILL CLEAR UP.

Only the hospital, the city hall and the rest room have their coal supply on hand for the coming winter and are thus protected against the rail and mine strikes.

The gas department has coal enough to last about eight weeks. The local factories are depending almost entirely on the Detroit Edison company for their power, and according to D. South, of the local office, Detroit headquarters state that they have about a 30-day supply on hand. The Ypsilanti branch is dependent upon the Detroit stations for its power.

Factories here use coal mostly for heating purposes and few have much on hand. Coal dealers here have only enough on hand to last for a short time, one dealer having a supply sufficient for about two weeks of regular sales. Coal ordered last March has not arrived yet, according to one dealer, and another has only a limited amount of soft coal.

The Normal college and the city schools have not their winter's supply in yet. The city school board is working on the matter now. The schools have always been supplied direct from Ohio mines, where the strike is now on. They are now negotiating with West Virginia mines, which will fill their order but at an exorbitant price. The Normal gets its supply through the state board at Lansing and it is thought that they have put in their order, but no coal has arrived yet.

Dealers are not alarmed over the situation, feeling that everything will be cleared up before winter. Manager Older states that the coal outlook would not be so serious if the railroads were not taking off trains, thus keeping coal from being shipped from mines, that will sell reasonably.

ROB COUPLE PROSPECT PARK SUNDAY EVENING

Roy Davis, Robert and James McLean, of Ypsilanti, and John M. Fitzharris, of Cleveland, were arraigned Monday afternoon before Justice M. B. Stadtmiller on a charge of robbery preferred by John Woodall.

The men all pleaded not guilty and asked for an examination. They were held under $10,000 bail for appearance next Monday.

Woodall alleges while he was in Prospect park Sunday night with a friend Davis and Fitzharris came up to him and robbed him. He stated Davis said to him, "Well, what is it, police court or $5 fine?" and then proceeded to go through his pockets.

Fitzharris attempted to rob the girl, but the two other men, who stayed in the car, objected and she was not molested.

Officers say Fitzharris confessed to his part in the transaction after he was arraigned. Three dollars in money was all that was secured.

MARSHAL NEWTON SAYS SAGINAW STRIKE IN HAND

United States Marshal Newton reported, on his visit to his family here Thursday evening, that the situation at Saginaw is now under control and that no further trouble is anticipated.

Marshal Newton has been busy recruiting and getting 50 deputies up to Saginaw to enforce Judge Tuttle's injunction restraining the strikers from interfering with workers engaged in the repair of rolling stock.

In commenting on the story which appeared in state papers Thursday to the effect that he and 13 deputies were saved by state troops from strikers he said that it was news to him and that he had no trouble with a mob nor did he see a state trooper until he had gone several blocks from the depot.

MICHIGAN PIKES STOP FOR SHORT PROGRAM

Members of the Michigan Pikes association made the next to the last stop of their 1922 season tour here last Thursday evening. They arrived shortly after six and gathered in front of the First National bank building, where their band gave several selections preceding a program.

T. E. Schable, as president of the Washtenaw County Auto Dealers' association, presided at the meeting and introduced W. S. Gilbreath, president of the Pikes association, who gave the only address made here.

Mr. Gilbreath explained the object of the annual tour—to promote the building of better highways and to popularize through touring route roads that lead somewhere.

Great Comedy, "Friendly Enemies," a Chautauqua Attraction

"Friendly Enemies" is one of the most popular of recent comedy successes. Scores of cities throughout the country have alternately laughed and wept over this irresistible comedy drama whose plot grows out of the conflicting convolutions of two bickering friends. A complete production of "Friendly Enemies" will be given at the coming Redpath Chautauqua by a cast of experienced Broadway actors organized by William J. Keighley, manager of the New York City Chautauqua.

ROTARIANS GET GOOD ADVICE

FOUR MEMBERS PRESENTED WITH NOURISHING
SOUVENIRS.

Rotarian Eckley, who has been taking a little trip in the south, showed up at the Rotarian luncheon Monday and just to show the boys that he thought of them he brought back a little souvenir.

Eck said that he did not have room in his Ford to bring all a present, and as he wanted all to have a chance he gave out a number to each member.

The numbers were then drawn and the first four out would receive his little remembrance. The lucky numbers were drawn by Rotarians Alban, Whitney, Pittman and Cleary, and each received a rope of "Old Kentucky" twist chewing tobacco.

The guests present were Rotarian Wm. A. Wetzel of Trenton, New Jersey; Rotarian Jeff Webb, of Detroit, and R. A. Turner, of East Lansing.

The speaker of the day was Wm. G. Lerchen, of Detroit, who spoke on "Investment Banking." He gave the Rotarians some wholesome advice in regard to the purchase of stock and bonds. He said that statistics showed that in the year 1920 nearly $350,000,000 was drawn out of banks and invested in worthless securities and advised that before buying to investigate thoroughly just what you were getting; that while all promotion companies were not fakes, it is better to be on the safe side.

MC KENNY ADDRESSES TEACHERS IN ANN ARBOR

President McKenny of the Michigan State Normal college, in his address before a large audience in the Natural Science auditorium in Ann Arbor Thursday afternoon, said that somewhere around 5,000 Michigan teachers are attending Michigan summer schools. He considers that this is the most significant movement of the past five years and that it will mean much for the schools and the country.

President McKenny's subject was "The Teacher College Movement."

He said that this movement has been going on for the past six or eight years and that it is gradually turning the normal schools of America into teachers' colleges.

He made an investigation of colleges last year and found that of the 167 state normal schools only 16 of them four years ago offered a full four-year course of study. Last year 60 per cent offered a full four-year course.

The economic situation now demands that the young students of the normal school take a full college course.

Time was when a teacher, after securing a limited certificate, was content to teach year after year what had been learned years before. The war has shaken many out of this lethargy and a new spirit has touched grade teachers. "Gray hairs are now as common on the campus as in an old ladies' home," commented the teacher.

Vigorous applause followed the conclusion of the talk, which was to an audience composed mostly of teachers.

Today (Thursday) the Redpath Chautauqua opens in Ypsilanti for a seven days' engagement. This organization is not new to Ypsilanti, as they have been with us each season for the past several years, and the people of this city have come to look on them as a welcome visitor.

On looking over their program you will find that, as in past years, Ypsilanti is going to get the cream of the Chautauqua circuit. There is a number that will please everyone from the little children to the grown-ups.

RECOVER CAR STOLEN HERE MAY 27TH

The car belonging to W. A. Van Wegen which was stolen on the evening of May 27 from where it was parked on Pearl street was recovered last week Friday at Warren, Mich. There were three men with the car at the time, one of them being captured and confined in the Mt. Clemens jail. The other two made their escape. The man caught claims that he had nothing to do with the stealing of the car; that the other two were attempting to sell him the car.

The car was brought to Ypsilanti Tuesday of this week and is now at the Joseph Thompson garage for repairs. One wheel was torn off, windshield broken, top stove in and fenders badly jammed from going into a ditch. The speedometer shows that since the car was taken it has been driven in the neighborhood of 4,000 miles. It is thought by the police that the car has been used by rum-runners and hold-up men in the vicinity of Detroit.

NORMAL TRAINING SCHOOL CLOSES TERM

The training school at the Normal college closed its summer term Friday with appropriate chapel at 9 o'clock a.m. This fall Miss Marian Watson will resume her work in the kindergarten room of the training school and Miss Skinner, who has been teaching in her place in the kindergarten room, will take Miss Margaret Wise's place.

The pupils of the third grade in the training school put on the play, "Peter Pan," at 8 o'clock Friday morning in the chapel room. It was given under the direction of their teacher, Miss Elizabeth McCrickett, but the children made the stage setting and decorations, which were much admired.

LOCAL MAN INHERITS ALASKAN FORTUNE

Charles McIntyre lost his barn on his farm, four miles south of Ypsilanti, on the Huron road. The loss is estimated at $20,000. This was bad news and worse luck. At the same time news was on its way that he had inherited through his mother, Emile Watrous McIntyre, a half share in 60 acres of land in Alaska valued at $800,000. This is good news and better luck.

Twenty-eight years ago J. L. Watrous went to Alaska and has been engaged in business there ever since. In 1907, during a land boom, he staked out three claims each for his four cousins, one of whom was Mr. McIntyre's mother. Her claim was the only one to become valuable. Twenty-nine holes have already been sunk in the land and in each case gold has been found. Mr. Watrous, a cousin, arrived Saturday with tangible evidence of the good fortune. No definite plans have been laid. It is understood that Mr. Watrous will handle the business at least temporarily, as he is thoroughly familiar with Alaska.

James O'Brien, aged 62 years, a former well known resident of this city, was hit by a street car on Grand River avenue, Detroit, Monday evening at 6:30 and died Tuesday morning at Receiving hospital as a result of the accident.

The deceased was a brother of Mrs. Charles Seeger and Mrs. B. Colby, of this city, Mrs. J. C. McGee, of Detroit, and Sister Adelaide, of Terra Haute, Indiana. Mrs. Clifford Thoms, of this city, was a niece.

Funeral services were held Thursday at 9 a.m. in St. John's Catholic church, with interment in St. John's cemetery.

M. S. N. C. RURAL EDUCATION WEEK

SPEAKERS DISCUSS ALL PHASES OF RURAL EDUCATION.

The program for "rural education week" at the Normal college opened auspiciously Monday morning with discussions on "Boys" and Girls' Industrial Club Work."

Miss Ella Smith, of the rural education faculty, presided at the Monday meeting, which opened at 10 o'clock. State Club Leader R. A. Turner was the principal speaker, and in a comprehensive manner he told of the beginning of club work in the southern states and of the act of congress in 1914 which divided the country into two sections and organized the work, its development, problems and future plans.

Mr. Turner stated that the district in which Michigan is a part is composed of 33 states and is first with regard to county club leaders, second in the number of local club leaders, third in the number of club members, and is up toward the front in all divisions of the club work.

Tuesday morning the question brought up was "What is the matter with the rural church?" President McKenny was the principal speaker and said that the great problem is individual difference. "It is not true that all men have a sense of religion or a sense of morality. We have to place restraints upon society that men may grow upwards. This is the business of preachers and teachers. We cannot escape the responsibility," he declared.

Wednesday morning the problem of the consolidated school was considered. Dr. May Campbell, of Cedar Falls, Iowa, gave an illustrated lecture on the consolidated schools of Iowa, and among the remarks said: "The consolidated schools are a challenge to the best in a rural teacher. Twelve grade buildings where the requirements of the teachers are two and four-year college degrees are the attainments of Iowa after years of struggle to convince the farmer that consolidated schools would not increase his taxes materially and that his children had the right to the best schooling obtainable."

Dr. Campbell said that the secret of the successful schools in Iowa was co-operation—a pulling together of all grades of society to attain that which meant the making of the best kind of Americans.

Thursday is Grade day, when the grange will be considered in connection with the rural school. A. B. Cook, master of the State Grange, will preside at the morning meeting and give one of the main addresses. Mrs. Dora Stackman, lecturer of the State Grange, will tell of the purposes of the grange; Miss Isabel Becker, deputy state superintendent of schools, will talk on "The Relation of the Grange to the Rural School," and the Hon. Harry Caton, master of the Ohio State Grange, Fresno, Ohio, will also appear on the morning's program. The afternoon conference will commence at 2 o'clock, with Miss Jennie Buell, Ann Arbor, secretary of the State Grange, presiding.

Friday's meetings will close the week's program and will deal with the farm bureau. M. L. Moon, state vice-president, will preside and James Nicol, president of the State Farm Bureau, Lansing, will give the main address, telling of the history and purposes of the farm bureau. C. I. Brody, secretary of the state organization, will tell of its program in the state and nation. E. O. Loveland, Milan, secretary of the county organization, will discuss the relation of the farm bureau to the rural schools. H. S. Osler will be toastmaster at the noonday luncheon.

In the afternoon George McCalla, president of the County Farm Bureau, will preside at the meeting and the farm bureau marketing program will be discussed by W. C. Cribbs, of the marketing department, Lansing. Prof. Roswell Carr, assistant county agent leader at M. A. C., will tell of the relation of other county agencies to the farm bureau, and H. C. Osler will tell of the bureau's program. The meeting will end with an open forum discussion of agricultural problems.

This week's program has been most instructive and more extensive than any ever undertaken in the promotion of better rural conditions.

LOCAL YOUTH LOSES FRIEND IN GOLF TITLE FIGHT

A. B. Quirk, 17, although losing Friday morning to Louis Breider, former state champion, at the nineteenth hole, brought to Ypsilanti the honor of having the youngest golf player to get into the amateur championship in Michigan at the Flint Country club.

Quirk was one of the eight players to survive Thursday's schedule, the other being Carlton F. Wells, University of Michigan professor, who Saturday defeated A. V. Lee, of Detroit, in the finals and won the amateur championship of Michigan.

E. G. SQUIRES LOSES FINGER TIP.

Clarence Low was busy all the forenoon Wednesday trying to convince people that he had not lost a part of his finger in the door of his car. E. G. Squires would very much like to trade places with Clarence, as he is the one that is nursing a very sore finger. The true version of the accident is this:

The Messrs. Low, Max and Squires had been to Detroit and on getting into the car on the return trip Mr. Squires in making room for Max in the seat placed his hand on the side of the door just as Low closed the door, and his finger was caught in the jam, pinching it off just below the nail.

MAE MURRAY'S OWN "PEP" REVEALED IN "FASCINATION."

It was the same Yankee "pep" that Mae Murray exhibits in her latest Metro release, "Fascination," presented by Robert Z. Leonard at the Wuerth theatre next Monday that gave the popular blonde star her start on the stage. It is because Miss Murray wouldn't take "no" for an answer when she wanted to hear was "yes," that she owes, to a great extent, her great success on the screen.

The same "pep" that got her first job in the face of obstacles is portrayed in her role of Dolores De Lise, in her latest picture, "Fascination." As the daughter of an American mother and a Spanish father, Dolores goes through experiences that a less persistent person would find overwhelming.

Mrs. A. J. Whitmire broke a record at the Washtenaw County club last Thursday afternoon when she went around the old nine-hole course in 38. The former record was 41, both Mrs. Whitmire and Mrs. McKee having made that score. The local women were playing the women of the Barton Hills club and defeated them by a score of 33 to 10. The ladies played both the old and new nines during the day and at noon a luncheon was served. Twenty members of the Barton Hills club were here for the tournament.

Spencer Davis left Tuesday for an auto trip through Wisconsin and Minnesota. No, he is not out selling Dodge cars on this trip, at least those who seem to know say that he expects to pick up a traveling companion and that some person out that way is going to have a job of uniting him in marriage to Miss Hazel Erickson, a young lady who graduated from the high school here this year and who lives out that way.

It's all right, Spencer, and we extend hearty congratulations to you and the young lady and wish you a prosperous and happy wedded life, and that you may have a lot of good prospects when you get back on the job.

GARVAN DEMANDS HARDING CLEAR HIM

Writes to President That He Has Been Grossly Misled by Daugherty.

New York.—Flatly refusing to return to the United States government a single chemical patent right owned by the Chemical Foundation, Inc., of which he is president, Francis P. Garvan, in a spirited and energetic letter to President Harding, asserted that the President, "grossly misled by the attorney-general," is, for the first time in American history, attempting to abrogate a solemn Executive order of a predecessor, and is acting, moreover, on information "furnished by German agents and interpreted by lawyers whose sole knowledge of the war and its lessons is derived from association with German clients."

Absolute legality in the sale of 4,700 and odd former German patents to the Foundation, and complete publicity in the organization and operation of this quasi-public institution, together with the highest of ethical motives, are earnestly maintained by Mr. Garvan in his communication, and he asserts with emphasis that no person connected with the Foundation has ever made a dollar out of it, or ever could do so under its charter and by-laws, himself least of all; he fortifies that statement with figures which show that the capital of the institution consisted of $428,900, all of which has been spent in the purchase of the patents and in educating the people through schools and colleges and in the encouragement of chemical societies, and says that the Foundation income from licenses barely meets the modest running expenses.

All of these financial details have long been available, Mr. Garvan reminds President Harding, and demands that the President ascertain the truth and tell the people whether the Foundation and its head have deserved the abuse they have received.

Gave All and Got Abuse

"It has given its all," Mr. Garvan writes. "You can take away nothing but the opportunity of service. It was all we got from the government. It is all we have."

"Mr. President, you have had the temerity to impugn the honor of the gentlemen who boast a part in the great work of building up or preserving the possibility of progress in organic chemistry for America. You have again been misinformed as to the nature of the trust we bore. That trust was not for the German Kartel, the owner of practically all the important patents, who had received them under the unthinking graciouslyness of laws they had induced. That trust was for the American people, their industrial independence and for the safety and health of their children and their children's children."

At the outset of his letter Mr. Garvan states that he has forwarded to the Allen Property Custodian the Chemical Foundation's formal answer to his demand, an answer "as an American corporation ready at all times to defend its rights in the courts," but that the public in whose interests the Foundation was organized, is entitled to be fully informed as to the circumstances under which the demand was made and the reason why it is unqualifiedly refused. The demand itself, Mr. Garvan asserts, together with the letter written by the President and the statement made by Attorney-General Daugherty, "demonstrate that you, Mr. President, have been grossly misled by the attorney-general, both as to the law and the facts of the case."

Eliminating "Enemy Interest"

Thereupon Mr. Garvan contends (1) that the attorney-general has listened exclusively to German agents, which is no investigation; (2) that the United States government has no interest in the suit brought by the Foundation to determine the ownership of funds held by the treasury; (3) that when President Wilson authorized the sale of the German patents, neither the President, secretary of state nor alien property custodian was, under the law, in the remotest sense a trustee for the German enemies; (4) that specific power to sell the patents was granted by Congress after full committee hearings on November 4, 1918, and on December 3, 1918, President Wilson, vested with power to supervise all sales, authorized Acting Secretary of State Frank L. Polk to approve the sale of the German chemical and other patents; (5) that on February 26, 1919, Polk ordered the sale in the public interest, noting that a public sale was not in the best interests of the public because it would offer opportunity for the patients to get into the hands of speculators and monopolists, and that the Chemical Foundation, obligated to grant non-exclusive licenses, was the best means for "eliminating alien interests hostile to American industries and of the advancement of chemical and allied industries in the United States;" (6), that President Wilson, returning from abroad, confirmed Polk's order on February 13, 1920, with this comment: "My reasons for the foregoing determination and order are stated in the said orders of Frank L. Polk, and in addition thereto, the public interest will be best served by the elimination of any enemy interest adverse to American citizens arising by reason of said choices in action, or rights, interests and benefits under said agreements"

"This sale," Mr. Garvan continues, "was made in the full light of all branches of the government and in the full light of publicity. The idea of its formation was the result of the intimate knowledge of the past use of these patents in a manner hostile to the United States' interests, and in full consultation with all of the executives of the government, the experts of our army and navy, and leaders of our chemical business organizations and the heads of all our scientific and research organizations. I do not ask you to accept my present statement of the matter, but insert here an extract from the report of A. Mitchell Palmer, filed with the President February 22, 1919 and by him forwarded to the Congress, and by that Congress made a public document and most widely commented on by the press of the country."

Palmer's Version of It

Mr. Palmer stated in the course of the report referred to by Mr. Garvan: "These patents, as had already been indicated, formed a colossal obstacle to the development of the American dye-stuff industry. Evidently they had not been taken out with any intention of manufacturing in this country or from any fear of American manufacture . . . upon consideration it seemed that these patents offered a possible solution for the problem, hitherto unsolvable, of protecting the new American dye industry against German competition after the war . . . The idea was accordingly conceived that if the German chemical patents could be placed in the hands of any American institution strong enough to protect them, a real obstacle might be opposed to German importation after the war, and at the same time the American industry might be freed from the prohibition enforced by the patents against the manufacture of the most valuable dyes." Accordingly these considerations were laid before various associations of chemical manufacturers, notably the Dye Institute and the American Manufacturing Chemists' Association. The suggestion was met with an instantaneous and enthusiastic approval, and as a result a corporation has been organized to be known as the Chemical Foundation (Inc.), in which practically every important manufacturer will be a stockholder, the purpose of which is to acquire by purchase these German patents and to hold them as a trustee for American industry. . . . The first president of the Chemical Foundation will be Francis P. Garvan of the New York bar, to whose clear vision and indefatigable industry I am chiefly indebted for the working out of this plan.

The combination was not objectionable to public policy, since it was so organized that any genuine American, whether a stockholder of the company or not, could secure the benefits of the patents on equal terms."

A Quasi-Public Idea

Mr. Garvan goes on to state that at that time he was a dollar a year man, with no expectation whatever of becoming alien property custodian; that it was only when Attorney-General Gregory resigned and Palmer was appointed attorney-general that Palmer asked him to take the custodian's place. Three months later, he writes, he testified before the Ways and Means Committee of the house: "The foundation of the Chemical Foundation was an effort to form an organization to represent as nearly as possible at that time the public interests. Judge Ingraham of New York and Judge Gray of Delaware had charge of drawing our charter and our trust agreement and our certificate of incorporation. We have endeavored to make it as nearly a public institution as our laws allow, and at the same time to have it an official organization. We wanted to sell these patents to the government, and if there had been any method by which we could make them a working force and still have them owned and controlled by the government, it would have relieved us of a great deal of responsibility, and if there is at this time any suggestion for modification or amendment of our plan which will insure in the minds of the committee a more definite and certain fulfillment of the intention and purposes of our organization I am certain that the Chemical Foundation and all its stockholders and all who are interested in it would be glad to conform to the wishes of the committee, because, in so far as we have public recognition and public support and government recognition and government support, we become more efficient and become more able to carry out the intentions which are in our hearts and minds."

Mr. Garvan states that the total or gross income of the Foundation has averaged $143,216.65 per year. The running expenses, bare overhead, have averaged $121,971.35, a net excess of $21,245.30 or .049 per cent on the $428,900 invested, allowing nothing for depreciation. The average life of the patents is eight years, so that 12½ per cent of the $271,850 cash paid for the patents, or $33,981 per year, should be subtracted from the apparent + revenue per year, which leaves an actual annual operation deficit of $12,735.70. In educational work, Mr. Garvan informs the President, the Foundation has spent $264,017.85, the entire balance of its capital.

Quotes English Prediction

Firmly maintaining that the Foundation is the keystone of the wall raised to protect the American people from German chemical domination, Mr. Garvan maintains such protection is indispensable to the future happiness, health and safety of the American people, and quotes from a recent open letter to parliament written by James Morton, largest carpet manufacturer of England, "Organic chemistry is the key to the world of new values, and that America in five years' time will have dye works and general chemical works equal to Germany."

As regards the development of organic chemistry for national defense, Mr. Garvan calls to his aid testimony by Marshal Foch and the late Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson to the general conclusion that a nation thoroughly equipped chemically may almost guarantee the peace of the future. And as regards its importance in the development of medicine he quotes Prof. Julius Stiglitz of the University of Chicago, world famous chemist:

"The pitiful calls of our hospitals for local anaesthetics to alleviate suffering on the operating table, the frantic appeals for the hypnotic that soothes the epileptic and staves off his seizure, the almost furious demands for remedy after remedy that came in the early years of the war, are still ringing in the hearts of many of us. No wonder that our small army of chemists is grimly determined not to give up the independence in chemistry which the war achieved for us! Only a widely enlightened public, however, can insure the permanence of what few scientists have started to accomplish in developing the power of chemistry through research. In every domain which chemistry touches."

"These," Mr. Garvan concludes, "were the thoughts which were in the minds of the men who knew the war and its lessons when they formed the Chemical Foundation."

The band has been rehearsing each week on Tuesday evening at Ann Arbor. They have played one concert on the courthouse lawn. In Ann Arbor that was considered by the best musical critics of the community to be of a very high standard.

This band will play a concert in Tecumseh August 2 from 8 to 10 p.m. They were called there by members of the entertainment committee of that city who attended the above mentioned concert in Ann Arbor June 27. RAY BATTERY WINSWEEK-END GAMES

Ray Battery won their week-end games from the Paige Dairy nine of Toledo Saturday and Sunday, taking the Saturday game by a score of 10-8 and the Sunday game 7-6.

The milkmen did not come up to expectations and the resulting games were viewed by a small and indifferent crowd.

Eddie Lau, of Ann Arbor, pitched for the battery makers Saturday and held them helpless until the last of the ninth, when the locals injected a little farce into the game by picking other positions to play. Hamermeschmidt was the only one to retain his regular berth. Lau went to the outfield and Rynearson, who had just returned with Carlson and Bell from Youngstown, Ohio, where they had been taking treatment of "Bonesetter" Reece, the American league surgeon, occupied the mound.

Rynie lobbed them across and let the visitors run their score up from 3 to 8 and then Myers bounced one to Rynie for the third out.

Crossman pitched for the Rays in the Sunday game and was opposed by "Dutch" Ostheimer, who worked the last three innings of Saturday's game. Both were hit hard and frequently and neither was offered the best of support.

The Ray Battery will meet the Wyandotte Alkalines on the Ray field Sunday.

Miss Clara Schmidt, of The Record office, spent Wednesday at Put-in-Bay.

INTERESTING RECORD OF THIRD MICH. CAVALRY

Miss Alice Haskins, of East Cross street, has in her possession records of the Third Michigan cavalry from the time of its organization until January, 1868. It contains a copy of the official record from the records of the Third Michigan cavalry to the adjutant general of the state of Michigan, stating casualties, engagements, enlistments, prisoners, captured and lost. This record was written in long hand by Charles Pattison Fish, who was regimental clerk under Major G. Moyers.

Mr. Fish had been attending school where the Normal college now is. After the war he was employed by the U. S. government to be at the head of the Signal Corps in Alaska, during which time his wife taught school in Alaska. At the time of his death he was journalist of one of the leading papers in New York city. The records were given to his grandfather, Dr. Samuel W. Pattison, then to his daughter, Mrs. Ann H. Haskins, who kept them for 20 years. Miss Alice Haskins has had the records about six years.

The engagements participated in are named, among them being the battle of Corinth. Prisoners captured by the enemy, 60, and prisoners captured from the enemy, 1,306. There is a roster of the commissioned officers, among them being Lyman C. Wilcox, captain; Carl B. Scheffler, second lieutenant; T. W. Quackenbush, captain; Henry Pinckney, second lieutenant, and George W. Lawrence, second lieutenant.

Each month Mr. Fish would write the doings of the cavalry, and some are very interesting, for instance: "September, 1861. So gallantly and quickly did the patriotic men of the state of Michigan rally to the rendezvous at Grand Rapids that but few were necessary to fill a new regiment with the excess over the number required for the second. This new regiment was styled the Third Regiment Michigan cavalry, and continued under the command of Colonel F. W. Kellogg with the second." "October, 1861:

It was a public pride that no regiment had gone from the state composed of a more healthy, brave and intelligent class of men than this, whose prospects in all respects were more brilliant, and whose present strength and appearance augured better for the future. The close of the first month found the proficiency of the regiment in drill and discipline as good as many acquire during four months' stay in camp of instruction. This advancement was owing not only to the military pride and exactness of its excellent officers, but also to the superior intelligence of the men under their command." The regiment's first move was to St. Louis, Mo.

"The first day of December, 1861, the regiment for the first time marched on soil stained by the blood of the contending foes, and the defiance to the traitors and secessionists of a populous city, who for months had desecrated its squares and streets with the blood of loyalty. It paraded some of the streets and received the highest praise both from military officers and loyal citizens, after which it marched to the famous Benton barracks beyond the outer suburbs of the city and entered the regular camp of instruction. In February, 1862, the first marching orders were received. The regiment embarked on transports and proceeded down the Mississippi river."

"From Commerce the regiment was ordered to New Madrid. The distance was some 60 miles, and to the inexperienced soldiers of the third proved a wearisome march. (Continued next week.)

State Fair Cattle Barns Equipped for 1,000 Head

New Addition Will Make Department a Leader Says G. W. Dickinson.

A new addition to the cattle barns, providing ample facilities for housing 1,000 head, promises to make this department the predominating ones at the Michigan State Fair, Detroit, September 1 to 10, says George W. Dickinson, secretary and manager.

Albert E. Stevenson, of Port Huron, a member of the board of managers, will be the member in charge of the department. He has been associated with the Michigan State Fair for a number of years and at one time was general superintendent of the exposition.

"Michigan fast is gaining a position of importance as a cattle raising state," declared Mr. Dickinson. "The beef breeds are being grown extensively, but dairy cattle hold a greater place."

"This year Michigan farmers who attend the fair will have the opportunity of witnessing some fine outside beef which, it has been promised, will exhibit here."

"We regard as an important step forward in the fostering of cattle in this state the erection of an addition to the cattle barns facilitating the housing of 1,000 head of cattle. This, with the construction of our new coliseum, makes the cattle department a most important one."

Mr. Dickinson sees in community breeding a matter worthy of the attention of the farmer everywhere. He says community breeding makes it possible for a farmer and his neighbors to have the best sires obtainable. One farmer might not be able to afford a $1,200 sire, but, if six farmers in a neighborhood gave $200 each all would derive a $1,200 benefit.

"Be careful in your cattle breeding. Be sure you know what you want before you breed your cattle. If you don't you may reduce the value of your cattle," warns Mr. Dickinson.

Mr. Dickinson says the state fair is encouraging the boys and girls clubs throughout the state to bring cattle to the exposition and many worthy awards have been promised.

J. A. Miller, of Swartz Creek, a member of the board of managers, will be in charge of the Swine department, with E. N. Ball, of Hamburg, superintendent, this year, Mr. Dickin son announced recently.

"The raising of hogs more and more is demanding the attention of the Michigan farmer," Mr. Dickinson claims. "The farmers' division of the Detroit Board of Commerce has taken up this question with great vigor."

"It is pleasing to see the farmers forsake the pens for the alfalfa and to allow the swine green pasture. There is a marked improvement in quality and this certainly will bring the farmer more money."

Fordson TRACTOR

"Yes I've more Time for Myself Since I Got a Fordson"

The Fordson Tractor is taking much of the drudgery out of farm life; it is solving the labor problem; it is reducing the cost of preparing land by almost one half of what it was with horses; and it is saving one third to one half of the farmer's time; and making farm life more attractive.

The Fordson will run your threshing machine—and at the most opportune time for you. It will operate the milking machines, saw your wood, fill your silo, pump the water, and take care of every kind of belt work—And don't forget—it will plow six to eight acres in a ten hour day, handling two plows with ease.

Thus the Fordson is the ideal year-round tractor. It will pay for its fall and winter keep in many ways.

There's a big story to tell you about the Fordson—and a true one—come in and get the facts. Or, if you prefer, telephone or drop us a card and we will bring them to you.

Because of its greater cost of manufacture it will never be a competitor of commercial dynamites. It is being distributed for the purpose of increasing interest and activity in land clearing. The details of the method of distribution can be secured from the various state agricultural colleges.

PERTINENT FACTS ABOUT MICHIGAN

We present these few facts of Michigan, our great unexploited state; neglected by the migration which settled the west; seemingly miraculously saved to feed the great industrial centers which have sprung up within and near her boundaries. A land which holds thousands of square miles with soil and climate equal to the finest prairies in the country—virgin ever land, which is still ringing with sounds of the axe and the soul of the lumberjack. A land with nearly 200,000 farms, among which are some of the most fertile and oldest homesteads in the middle west. A land which has every advantage of being close to the large manufacturing centers, with values untouched by the inflation which has gripped the other farm lands of the country.

The farm land of Michigan is her greatest resource. Its productivity is the yield of energy and power for human mind and body to build a tremendous empire for the betterment of mankind.

Our industries, our schools and our spiritual life are dependent on the soil of Michigan.

Population — 3,668,412 (1920 census.)

put one hand over her hips. She strained her ears to hear if Jerry had made a move. How she hoped the dear baby had fallen asleep, and that he would not wake up until they were in Auburn! As unexpected as the voice of one long dead, the sound of familiar tones came to her ears. The words were:

"Now, Mrs. Robertson, you sit there, and you too, Eve. Then you won't have to ride backward. Bob and I'll sit here."

The squatter girl's heart nearly jumped out of her mouth. There, within touching distance, was her powerful enemy. Her flesh tingled as if bees had stung her. Robert Percival and Evelyn too, were there. Pollyop shivered and wished that she had waited until tomorrow, or perhaps the day after.

She tried to drive out the fear of being discovered and think only of Jerry's happiness and Daddy's. To make her heart beat less fast, she tried earnestly to think of some words that Jesus would hear and understand. But even that desire was driven from her as two heavy bodies dropped upon the seat above her. Plainly she saw two pairs of men's boots near enough to touch her if she moved an inch forward.

Back against the side of the car she pushed her head, noiselessly drawing her thick curls over her shoulder to make more room. How intensely she wished they were in Auburn! If the train would only start ahead, she was sure she would lose the insane desire to open her mouth and scream.

Then a whistle from the engine, and as if the man at the throttle had heard the inward cry of her frightened young soul, the train began to move slowly. As it crossed the northern end of the town, one of the owners of the boots near her face grew exceedingly restless, and of a sudden he pushed his foot directly against her nose. Gently she shoved it away; and a low exclamation from above followed instantly.

Then a strong, large hand lifted the velvet hangings; and before Pollyop could stir, a set of fingers took sharp hold of her face. In her frightened state she threw the hand off; and another ejaculation came to her ears. Then two hands came under and groped for a grip. She fought strenuously to hold her place; but the person pulled her out by main force.

Polly Hopkins was almost fainting when Robert Percival placed her on her feet. The silk dress, partly tucked in Daddy's boots and partly out, was covered with dust. In silent embarrassment she stooped and brushed it. Then she glanced up impudently.

Robert, wax-white, was staring at her as if he could not believe his eyes; and MacKenzie, carried away by the rage within him, viciously clutched at her arm. Pollyop dragged herself away from the strong fingers.

"Don't touch me, you," she snapped hoarsely at him. "I'm goin' to Auburn to see my Daddy Hopkins."

Her voice was high-pitched and tensely toned. Her gaze sought one after another until it rested on Evelyn Robertson, huddled back in the corner of the seat.

"You can make him leave me be, ma'am," Polly went on. "I got a right to go to Auburn as well's any one else."

"You're a thief," Marcus thrust in grimly. "A little thief. You're stealing a ride."

With all her fighting instinct roused, Polly squared herself.

"Sure, I'm stealin' a ride," she retorted. "I couldn't ride honest; you wouldn't let me. My Daddy Hopkins—"

"It seems to me," interrupted Mrs. Robertson haughtily, "that she's stolen something else besides ride. That dress you have on, Miss; where'd you get it?"

Polly's under lip dropped. It seemed as if a thousand hostile eyes were glaring at her.

"It's Evelyn's dress," went on the lady. "Take that coat off and let me see."

Before Robert could interfere, MacKenzie had grasped Pollyop by the shoulders and had stripped off the heavy coat. And there she stood, her bare young arms and sunburned neck exposed, her scarlet face hidden by a handful of curls. She was so overwhelmed with shame she could not say a word.

"Twice a thief," gritted MacKenzie. "I suppose you didn't give her this, Eve?"

With one long finger he pointed at the dress, but his eyes, sparkling with anger, were on Evelyn.

Never had Miss Robertson been in such a dilemma. Never had she felt so much like quietly fainting away.

side of the lake, about opposite the Hopkins shanty, and when Robert had helped Polly off the train and had seen it pull away north, he stood moment considering how best to get her back home. He could not make the girl tramp back to Ithaca and then across the head of the lake to the Silent City.

"Stay here with the child," he said curtly. "I'll be back in a minute."

Polly watched him dully as he strode away. When he returned, he had in his hand a large key with which he unfastened a boathouse on the shore. Almost before Pollyop sensed what was happening, she was

She dared a bold glance at him. "What in heaven's name can I do for you?" he demanded hoarsely. "You don't seem to have any honor at all! Can't I say something that would make you a better girl?"

Polly swayed and pushed back her curls. Her tired head fell forward on her chest, and she bit her tongue to keep back the rush of words.

"Get Wee Jerry back his Daddy Hopkins," she gulped presently, "an' I'll swear to be the goodest squatter's brat in the Silent City."

No smile answered her emphatic promise. Robert's face was white and severe, and he was studying her in silence.

"It does seem," he managed to say, "the more I plan and work, the worse things go."

He wanted to kiss the pale lovely face, to take her away from the settlement. He wanted to banish the last few months that, every time he thought of them, sent him dizzy with pain.

"I've tried my best to have your father released," he continued in low tones, "and I've tried not to love you at all. But I do want you to be good—I mean as good as you can."

Up went the curly head, and straight into his eyes she sent a piercing glance. One slender hand flung out toward him.

"Couldn't you trust me, sir?" she breathed. "Couldn't you just forget about—about—"

She advanced toward him, her hands extended and her face twitching nervously.

"Of course taking the dress doesn't matter to me," he choked. "Mr. MacKenzie is a very wicked man, and he has treated you abominably. But, what hurts me so is the thought of the man who died in your—your home—" His voice broke and, turning swiftly, he walked away.

Polly tried to call his name, but her throat made no sound. When he disappeared up the lane she picked Jerry up, and shivering, went into the shanty.

CHAPTER XIII

No more unhappy girl lived in all of Tompkins county than Polly Hopkins. Seemingly never-ending days dragged by their minutes one by one. When she woke up in the morning she wished it were night! When she crawled into bed she wished it were morning! And every twenty-four hours brought renewed anguish to Jerry. Pollyop spent most of her time trying to soothe him.

And thus the two little waifs lived until the news spread through the Silent City that Evelyn Robertson and Marcus MacKenzie were going to be married in a fashionable church in Ithaca.

"Stay Here With the Child," He Said Curtly. "I'll Be Back in a Minute."

In the stern of a boat with Jerry crouched down beside her, and Robert's strong arms were sending the craft swiftly across the lake. Not a word had been said between them until they drew up under the willow trees near Jeremiah's shack.

"Get out," exclaimed Robert, holding the boat that it might not tip.

Pollyop scrambled to the bow, bringing Jerry with her, the beautiful dress now hanging in limp folds around her feet. Very pale, Robert lifted her, almost fainting, from the boat, and picking Jerry up in his arms, walked ahead to the shanty.

In the terrible moment that Polly bent under his dark gaze, she felt she must tell him the truth. How could she let him go away thinking her twice a thief, besides believing Oscar Bennett had been her man?

A friend of mine came down to see us off," said Robert distinctly, making a gesture toward her. "The train started before she could get off. Just let us stop at MacKenney's, will you?"

He had a roll of bills in his fingers which he thrust into the officer's hand. Smilingly the man bowed and jerked the cord over his head.

"We're right there now, sir," said he.

"Thanks," replied Robert. "Thanks," and "Come," he said to Pollyop.

Jerry! Daddy Hopkins' baby, went through her mind. Wee Jerry asleep under the cross seat!

"Wait a bit, mister," she faltered, "wait till I get the baby. I were takin' him up to see his daddy, so he wouldn't die." Her lip trembled as she looked at Mrs. Robertson. "Get up, please, ma'am," she begged. "He's under there, where you're sittin'!"

Mrs. Robertson and Evelyn rose immediately; and Polly pulled the shawl-wrapped Jerry into full view. In another instant Robert had snatched up the child and pushed Polly out of the door. He turned about and looked back at the other three, a dreadful expression on his face.

"If you stick your finger in this, Marc," he said huskily, "you can say goodbye to me for good." And he followed Polly out of the train as it came to a stop.

PLANTS NEED COLD WEATHER

Experiments Have Shown That in Northern Countries a Certain Amount Is Essential.

According to common belief, cold weather causes plants to become dormant during the fall, while warm weather the succeeding spring again incites new growth. Intensive investigations of Dr. Frederick V. Coville of the federal Department of Agriculture, which have been conducted over a period of ten years, and which have covered every phase of this subject, demonstrate that both of these traditional theories are erroneous. Dormancy in our native trees and shrubs begins some time before the start of cold weather each winter; the appearance of Jack Frost is not necessary for the establishment of complete dormancy. Furthermore, after such a condition of dormancy has developed, exposure of the plants to the ordinary growing temperature thereafter does not arouse them from their lethargy so that they begin growth anew.

Interestingly enough, the Coville experiments show that plants which have responded to the lure of autumnal and winter dormancy will not react properly and resume normal growth the following spring unless they are subjected during the interim to a period of chilling. A certain amount of cold is essential to stimulate the plant growth.—Scientific American.

"Twice a thief," gritted MacKenzie. "I suppose you didn't give her this, Eve?"

With one long finger he pointed at the dress, but his eyes, sparkling with anger, were on Evelyn.

Never had Miss Robertson been in such a dilemma. Never had she felt so much like quietly fainting away.

CONNORS CHECKS UP ON CHRONIC CITY DEPENDENTS.

Chief Connors is now checking up on Ypsilanti residents who are taking a summer vacation with the belief that next winter the city poor fund will tide them over the severe parts. He announces that all persons who have refused to work during the summer will not receive help next winter, should work become scarce and their incomes cut off.

There is no excuse for idleness at present. Ypsilanti factories cannot find enough men and the demand for labor is strong. The chief has made a list of those who are not working and who have appealed to the city for help in the past. They will have to labor in the winter if they wish to keep well fed and warm. No work, no eat.

25 cents will secure The Ypsilanti Record until January 1, 1923, to those who live within 15 miles of Ypsilanti. A home paper that you will like.

DODGE BROTHERS

COUPE

You will realize, the moment you see this coupe, how perfectly it fulfills a very real need.

It was designed and built by Dodge Brothers in response to that need—long-standing and often-expressed by people in all parts of the world.

With Dodge Brothers chassis as a starting point, it only remained to create a coupe body which would unite the usual coupe refinements with greater lightness, hardihood and economy.

The world now knows how this was accomplished. An entirely new precedent in closed car construction was established. The body is built of steel.

Moreover, the deep comfortable seat is upholstered in genuine leather. The doors are exceptionally wide. The rear compartment will hold a small steamer trunk and other luggage. The enamel, baked on the steel at high temperature, is readily restored, after hard usage, to its original lustre.

In every detail the car reflects the purpose of the builders—to make it a practical car of universal appeal.

New Fall Things

Suits

The new Fall suits are beginning to arrive—every one is always anxious to see the new Fall things; they are just as swagger and captivating this season as ever, only a little more so. For that vacation trip we have just the thing for Milady—a new Fall suit. They are so practical this season—and yet so good looking. We invite you to drop in and inspect them at your leisure.

Silk and Wool Dresses

The Fall dresses are every bit as lovely and enticing as the suits. For the daughter who is preparing her Fall school wardrobe or for Milady who is going away for a trip—a new Fall dress is just what she will need. Now that the days are getting cooler—one must have at least one dark dress to fall back on—and they are always so comfortable, especially when Milady knows that she has on one of our new Fall numbers. We suggest in particular those nobby Betty Wales frocks. We have them in silks and in wools—both kinds are lovely, and when you see them you will say necessary.
